

SUBSTITUTE ABSTRACT

An electronic commerce system and method may be provided that includes displaying only available products for the corresponding dealing company on a web page. E-commerce transactions may be performed by considering locations of the respective dealing companies and a distribution network thereof, performing a fast and smooth dealing for various expenses on e-commerce processing, and using a process for easily placing and receiving an order between the dealing companies. Therefore, the system and method may automatically determine whether errors have occurred in the orders placed by the respective dealing companies, and automatically cure the generated errors in connection with other components, thereby preventing and curing the errors generated from the transaction processes previously.